

Institutional Identity and History

NED University of Engineering and Technology, commonly known as NEDUET, is the premier public engineering university in Sindh, Pakistan.

- History: It was originally founded in 1921 as the Prince of Wales Engineering College, a specialized civil engineering institution. In 1924, it was renamed after Nadirshaw Edulji Dinshaw, following a philanthropic endowment by his heirs.
- University Status: On March 1, 1977, the institution was officially upgraded to university status, transforming into a comprehensive public research university.

Campus Infrastructure
